I use an HP-15C calculator. Basically, you connect the time/date controls and punch in the time you want to find. You can even find the current time with a simple calculator-like program. The manual is the best thing about this because it says the length of time in each range, the sequence it follows, and what it will return. For example, I wanted to get the time to 1500, 1900, 2200, etc. I wanted the sequence to be "MM/DD/YYYY HH:MM:SS" and I got it with a simple click of my finger. I use an HP-15C calculator.
